PREFACE.

IN this the first Register of the Pennsylvania Society of the Colonial Dames of America, it seems a matter of not unreasonable pride to refer to the fact that from the action of a small group of women, met together at 1301 Locust Street, Philadelphia, April 8, 1891, to form a Pennsylvania Society, has resulted our large national organization, which has spread a network of patriotic Colonial interest among women in the thirteen original States, in the District of Columbia, and even beyond these limits into non-Colonial sections.

Those who responded to the original invitation and call issued by Mrs. Crawford Arnold and Miss Anne H. Wharton, and thus assisted in the formation of the Pennsylvania Society of the Colonial Dames of America, and those who were elected to office prior to incorporation, will find their names appended to the charter of this Society as its originators. As such, no date of election is given when their names appear upon the Register. This same honorable distinction has been made with regard to the names of a number of women who were invited to join the Pennsylvania Society during the organization period, although not actually present as founders at the meeting of April 8, 1891.

The Pennsylvania Society being for some months the only Society, and accepting members who traced their lines back to ancestors in the other original States, our early eligibility lists included offices from all of the thirteen Colonies. As the different States formed their organizations and met the Pennsylvania Society in council, this eligibility list was modified and changed in order to meet the requirements of the incoming Societies. Originally the founder of a town was accepted as sufficient service for admission. This led to confusion; and when the first National Convention was held at Wilmington, May 19, 1892, it was decided to omit founders of towns from the eligibility lists of the Societies then in session. Later, when an adjourned meeting of this first Council was held in Washington, D. C., January, 1893, it was decided by the Societies there convened that each State Society should form its own eligibility list according to the early laws of that State and in accordance with the constitution of the National Society, such lists to be used by the eligibility committees of the several States. From time to time, as the States have sent in their lists, services used as bases of admission to the Pennsylvania Society have been added to and taken from the eligibility lists used in Pennsylvania. This process of subtraction and addition has taken place in all the Societies, but has been more sensibly felt in this State than in any other because this was the first Society formed. For example, in early days the Pennsylvania Society accepted the descendants of Mayflower Pilgrims; but when the Massachusetts eligibility list was promulgated leaving off these worthies as eligible ancestors, it became necessary for the Pennsylvania Eligibility Committee and those of all the other States to adopt this ruling of the Massachusetts Society.

This somewhat involved explanation has been made in order to reconcile apparent discrepancies in the Register, which may cause the Eligibility Committee to appear in the light of an inconsistent and arbitrary tribunal, when it is in reality a body of fair-minded women who have very little authority, being themselves governed by hard and fast rules made by the Societies of the thirteen States.
